

Alaska 2007 Criminal Recidivism

- Sexual offenders were the least likely to commit the same offense again.
- 3% of the persons who were convicted of a Sexual offense in a 1999 case had at least one new Sexual conviction.
- Sexual offenders were the group least likely to be convicted of the same type of offense that they were convicted of in the 1999 sample.
- No Sexual offenders were convicted of any offense more serious than their 1999 offense.
- Offenders whose 1999 felony charges resulted in conviction of a Sexual offense were among the least likely to be re-arrested, have new cases filed, be re-convicted, or return to custody.